KNOW YOUR DRUGGIST BETTER—His your doctor's right-hand man

Reflecting the Community's Confidence in the Druggist

A SMALL voice sent up its appeal, "I hurted my dolly, and I came right here so's you could fix it!" The childish plea reflected the community's confidence in the Neighborhood Druggist to smooth out many a little trouble.

Often taken for granted, the druggist's many services to the people of his neighborhood entitle him not only to their respect and esteem, but to a measure of practical support not generally given.

He is your Doctor's right-hand man, ready to serve you when sickness comes, and to help guard your health. He gained his knowledge of drugs and health measures by years spent in college and the school of experience. He is a professional man, a pharmacist, by education, and of necessity a merchant, too, to make ends meet. You can best show your appreciation of his services by patronizing his store, with its assortment of household conveniences. But if you would keep him in your midst, don't expect him to meet every cut price made by stores whose sole object is to sell merchandise.

Municipal District Blindman No. 430

MRS. DEAN REYNOLDS GETS SEPARATION

"Never in all my time have I heard such a disgusting and pitiful story as told by your wife in the witness box and I very much regret that I cannot send you to jail, as there is no penal servitude provided for under the act for this offence. You did not appreciate the fact that you had a fine, cultured little wife. I am finding you guilty on fact."

With these words, Magistrate George B. McLeod handed down judgment in provincial police court, Edmonton, Saturday morning on Dean Reynolds, farmer north west of Lacombe, charged with a breach of the Domestic Relations Act.

The magistrate granted an order of separation and full custody of the child to the mother, also $5 per week for the support of the child. Judgment will take effect immediately. Defendant was also ordered to pay the costs of the court, and he was warned to keep away from his wife, and, on no account, to endeavor to see the child.

Mrs. Reynolds, giving evidence on Friday, had told a story of ill-treatment at the hands of her husband, of cruelty by beating, abusive language, insufficient clothing and lack of nourishing food. She had also stated that while she had been out tending in order to make a living for herself, her child had been left in the care of her husband's mother and that when she returned, she found the girl was very dirty, able to swear and had required a bad disposition. Action for divorce has been filed by Mrs. Reynolds against her husband in the supreme court and papers were served on the latter at the conclusion of his trial Saturday.

SHOULD NOT DISQUALIFY
There is complaint in Ontario that old age pensions authorities refuse pensions to applicants who have children able to support them. The adoption of this rule has provoked some criticism.

It would be interesting to know whether the same practice is followed in other provinces. The federal Act says nothing directly about contributions from children. It grants pensions to everyone otherwise qualified whose "income" is below certain figures. Occasional gifts from children to parents could hardly be called "income" although maintenance, meaning food and lodging might be so described.

In Saskatchewan, as in other provinces, the filial obligations of sons and daughters are given legal sanction. A son or daughter may be brought before a magistrate and ordered to pay not more than $20 a week for the support of a dependent parent. The magistrate is to use his discretion as to the financial capacity of both parties.

This law is seldom invoked, and it is safe to say that its principle is disapproved by many people. The whole idea of the Old Age Pensions Act, which has the support of a vast majority throughout the country, is to relieve the aged and poor of dependence on the charity of individual families—whether sons or daughters, more distant relatives or strangers. The principle of the Act is that citizens of 70 who lack funds are entitled, as a matter of right and not as a charitable grant, to share in the income of the community. Disqualification of those who happen to have children would be unfair, to the applicants themselves and to the children.

THE PEACE VALUE OF PREPAREDNESS

Certain labor and other organizations continue to combat the idea of cadet training in the public and high schools of Canada on the ground that such training injects the virus of militarism into the minds of the young. It has yet to be demonstrated that this is the case, even though real instead of dummy rifles are used and certain emphasis is placed upon the idea of good marksmanship. But even if it were true it might not be something altogether bad.

At the League of Nations gathering at Washington made a speech. During that speech he made particular reference to his own country. Said he: "China has always followed the path of peace, but my country has learned by bitter experience that a peaceful nation which does not defend itself against aggression does not get peace, but merely invites further aggression."

Every word the Chinese minister spoke in making that statement was true and within the knowledge of everyone who takes the trouble to follow world events. He might have made the statement much stronger and still kept within the bounds of truth, but he said that the peaceful nation which does not keep itself in a position of efficient defence against aggression does not get peace but invites further aggression. That is and has been the way of the world for centuries. The hope lies before us of a different outlook when the League of Nations and world court function as we trust they will ultimately. Until that time comes and conditions remain more or less as they have been, we have the example of China to warn us of the futility of assuming that because we refuse to recognize any need for defence therefore we need have no fear of aggression.

INTO THE UNKNOWN

Few have men been so overwhelmed in the moment of victory by such a grim and pathetic tragedy as fell to the lot of Capt. Robert Falcon Scott, whose heroic death was a sad, but truly glorious ending to a career of brilliant and daring achievement.

His first Antarctic expedition reached the great floating ice barrier early in 1902, and after discovering the hitherto unknown territory of ice and glaciers, which he named King Edward's Land, he made a couple of wonderful journeys, which established his reputation as a daring explorer and a resourceful leader of men.

In November, 1902, he started on a southward journey and succeeded in advancing within 463 miles of the South Pole, an achievement far beyond anything hitherto accomplished. In the following summer he made his way into the interior of Victoria Land, and in the course of 81 days he covered 1028 miles, travelling over a series of glaciers and mountains and reaching an altitude of 9000 feet above sea level.

It was during the progress of his second expedition, which left England in 1910, that fossils and coal were discovered in the Antarctic and proved that the icy regions of today were once covered with a luxuriant vegetation. On November 2, 1911, he left his base to make a last attempt to reach the pole, at which he arrived on January 18, 1912, accompanied by Mr. Wilson, Capt. Oates, Lieut. Bowers, and Petty Officer Evans.

All the joy of Scott's great achievement was crushed by the discovery that he had been forestalled by Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer, who had reached the Pole by another route thirty-three days earlier, and had left behind him the flag of his country flying above a tent, in which were deposited the records of his visit. Amundsen had made his way to the Pole from a base 400 miles to the east of Scott's headquarters, and both his outward and return journeys were made in exceptionally fine weather, whereas the conditions experienced by Scott were exactly the reverse.

In addition, the Norwegian, by sheer chance chose a much easier and less arduous route than that followed by the British party.

After a brief rest at the spot they had believed so strenuously to reach, the five disappointed men turned their faces northwards and commenced the weary tramp of 800 miles back to their base. Bad storms and bad weather stranded them from the start. Evans died on February 27, and 17 days later Oates, who was no badly frost bitten that he could walk no further, stepped out into a blizzard to meet a hero's death, in order to leave his comrades free to make a dash for safety.

The survivors tramped on for three more days, and on March 19th, they erected their tent for the last time. A terrible storm arose and raged for several days, so that the men were imprisoned in the tent, unable to leave and make an attempt to reach a depot, only 11 miles away, where scores had been left on their outward march. They finished the last of their food and fuel on the first day of their confinement, and there are few incidents in the world's history to compare with the grandeur and the pathos of the closing scene in the lives of these three gallant men, calmly awaiting their deaths by starvation and exposure.

Wilson and Bowers died first, and with his comrades lying dead on either side of him, Scott wrote farewell letters and made entries in his journal until the pencil dropped from his dying grasp. Eight months later, a search party from the base found the frozen remains of the three heroes and brought back with them Scott's letters and journals which revealed to the world another glorious story of British courage and endurance, a story which is a thrill of sorrow and pride throughout the Empire.

BASEBALL SEASON OVER

Owing to early arrival of harvest this year, the baseball league was forced to cancel their playoff finals, the league standing taken as final positions. Clive won the league, winning every game with the exception of one being a draw with Bentley. They deserved every victory, having a strong and well balanced team; being fortunate enough to have a strong battery with three or four experienced pitchers. Lacombe won out Black-falke for second place with their last game of the season and were looking forward to tackling Clive in the finals.

One of two very "big" games were played on the "big" diamond and the management and players were well pleased with the support and enthusiasm shown by the fans. Lacombe is considered a strong opposition in any branch of sport, the football and hockey teams making a good showing, adding much to the reputation of the town in sporting circles and to outsiders. Next season the Lacombe Baseball Club expect to field one of the strongest teams in the district, challenge various towns in exhibition games and enter the provincial playoff tournament. The management wish to thank every fan for their support during the past season, also those who so kindly contributed to the club's funds.

The Success of Municipal Hospitals

(By Edna Kelle)
Department of Public Health
Government of Alberta
Ten years after the launching of the Municipal Hospital campaign in Hanna, Alberta, an extension to the original hospital built in 1921, will be formally opened on September 12th by the Hon. George Ross, Minister of Public Health.

The original hospital provided no accommodation for 23 patients; the new wing increases the accommodation to 54 beds, and also provides more suitable quarters for the nursing staff.

In addition to affording facilities for the care of the sick during these years, the Hanna hospital has been a financial success. Since 1923, over $50,000 has been expended from general revenue for new equipment, such as X-ray machines, operating room and fire protection equipment.

A sub-hospital at Craigmyle has been furnished at an outlay of approximately $50,000, and a surplus of $68,000 has accumulated to the credit of the hospital.

Some opposition, largely from the rural districts, met the hospital scheme in the beginning, but this has disappeared like snow before a chinook, and when the vote providing for the extension was taken last year, it carried by a majority of 603, only 83 opposing it. The increased support came largely from the rural districts.

The Hanna hospital is a three-story brick building with full basement. All the wards are private or semi-private and the equipment is up-to-date in every sense of the word. The primary idea behind the Municipal Hospitals act was to provide for maternity cases, and the women of the Hanna district have not failed to avail themselves of this privilege. Few now remain in their homes for confinement. More than 700 babies have been born in the hospital, and in one eventful twenty-four hours, six lusty young Canadians first saw the light under the hospital roof.

During the year 1928, 1,363 patients were cared for, an increase of 15.3 per cent over 1927. Hospital days numbered 4,897. 115 major and 327 minor operations were performed. Medical cases numbered 563, and maternity 138. 140 babies were born. 69 clinical cases were treated and 569 X-ray plates taken. Deaths numbered 43, including 8 still born and premature babies and 2 blue babies.

The people of Hanna are very proud of the hospital, and its record far exceeds their wildest expectations. Not only has it provided for the care of the sick, but it has been a factor in developing a content among the people, who know they can get proper attention when ill, near home and their "ain folk."

Science of Political Espionage in Saskatchewan

There have been within the past few months so many revelations concerning the machinations of the Gardiner Government of Saskatchewan that nothing new can be classed as a scandal. The extent to which civil servants have been pre-arranged into the service of the political machine, even to the extent of the extent of their dues being paid to join the Opposition's organization, is already well known far beyond the boundaries of Saskatchewan, but how civil servants have been gagged against expressing their personal opinions even in private has only come to light since the general election in which Premier Gardiner and his Government were swamped.

There has been an epidemic of "carpeting" in Saskatchewan civil service. Members, whose fidelity to the Government had never been questioned have been summoned mysteriously before deputy ministers and subjected to an inquisition as to certain things they were credited with having said in what were supposed to be private conversations. According to all accounts the deputy ministers, some of whom, no doubt conducted the inquisition simply as unwilling partners to a political plot, were in possession of the details of the conversation with uncanny accuracy of detail, and, if the accused civil servant was found guilty, he (or she, for there was no discrimination as to sex, race, or religion and not always politics) was "sent up" to the minister and there subjected to another third degree. What happened there—Nobody seems to have known nor cared since everyone knew the machine was about to break down anyway, carrying to its destruction the civil servants who had been gagged actually for no other reason than to betray their friends. Even before the crash came, many of these were looking for new jobs and it is hardly possible to picture the surprise of public servants when they discovered that the ingenious little stenographer in some instances had been nothing but a political adventurer, a siren luring her "boss" to his own destruction.

The public service never has been a fit place for party politics but the Government has a guilty conscience which will pay the modern equivalent of forty pieces of silver out of the public funds, too—anyone who will make friends only to betray their confidence.

TO THE EDITOR

Lacombe, Alta.,
Aug. 31, 1929

Dear Sir:

I could not help but be amused at the article in your paper signed "A Reader". It seems such a pity that the religious gentleman objects to the ice-cream parlors and gasoline stations doing a little honest business on Sunday. But the worthy gentleman seems to have no objection to Golf on Sunday which requires the services of a "caddy" which means working for hire on Sunday for said "caddy". What would this narrow minded person have to say had he run out of gas on line at Gull Lake on Sunday?

For my part, Sunday is the only day we get for a little recreation and if our own lake offers no attractions we will certainly go elsewhere. Gull Lake has been dead long enough, and the gentleman of old fashioned ideas would love to see it remain that way. But for my part, I think it a wonderful improvement and it will mean a lot to Lacombe.

So, in conclusion, I might remind the gentleman that we are living in a modern age, and not in the dim, dark, ages.

TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:

In reading the "Imaginary Dialogue" submitted by Rev. Deason, I was very much surprised that he had not found out more about the races than he did, and that he had to resort to misstatements in his letter. The Gull Lake Aquatic Club did most earnestly give its consent to the sports; the matter was brought before the Regatta Committee, and was endorsed by them; also by the Vice-President and Executive of the Club; As for the two cities trying to pull things on the "Country Bumpkin" as Mr. Deason is pleased to call our rural friends, the entire idea originated in the Gull Lake Aquatic Club Canoe Team, with myself doing the arranging, for which I offer no apology, and if the performances were not lawful, I am willing and ready for it to be brought into court. Perhaps some of the "country coons" will have a word or two to say to Mr. Deason for the very "choice" names he designated them by.

Not a few of our friends from the surrounding community have expressed their pleasure in regard to the regatta, and we do not think they consider themselves "The Goat."

News From the Wheat Pool

The Alberta Wheat Pool is making a determined effort to point out to Pool members the importance of delivering Pool grain to Pool elevators wherever it is possible, in view of the light crop in Alberta this year.

The Pool elevator system was built up for the purpose of giving service and protection to the membership. Three years ago there were 4 pool elevators in Alberta. To-day there are 437, representing an investment of over six million dollars of Pool farmers' money. This investment must be protected.

Pool members should realize that it is a matter of very great importance for the Selling Agency to have Pool wheat readily available at all times. When Pool wheat is delivered to Pool elevators it is always available to the Selling Agency.

This great elevator system was developed because Pool farmers insisted that their wheat be taken. For years the head of the Wheat Pool has been deluged with requests and even demands for Pool elevators. Now it is up to Pool farmers to show their appreciation of their own system by delivering their wheat to Pool elevators.

The introduction of combines and auto trucks has speeded up harvesting on the Canadian prairies to a remarkable degree. The result has been an unprecedented flow of grain to the elevators during a brief period in the fall. In order to restrict this glut as much as possible, the Alberta Wheat Pool is offering a bonus of 2 cents a bushel for wheat held on farm until December 2nd, 1929.

Those producers who realize it is not good business to deliver their crop in such a hurried manner that it has a reactionary effect on the market. The Wheat Pool has not made a practice of compelling Pool farmers to deliver their crop in one crop year. For instance, some Pool farmers have carried wheat from their 1928 crop past the date of the closing of the 1928 Pool, which was July 15th, and delivered this grain to the 1929 Pool. No objection has been made by the Pool against this practice. A recent new item issued by the Wheat Pool mentioned that action had been taken against a few Pool members who had not delivered their 1928 wheat to the Pool. This has been construed by some to mean that all Pool wheat should be delivered within the Pool year. As a matter of fact the action was taken because the wheat had been delivered outside the Pool.

MARITIMES ARE MORE PROSPEROUS

The president of the Halifax Board of Trade urged the other day in Toronto that Canadians as a whole should devote closer study to the special problems of the Maritime provinces.

The statement sounds like an echo of the bitter complaints emanating from Nova Scotia and New Brunswick a few years ago, although probably not so intended. The generous support accorded the recommendations embodied in the Duncan Commission's report by the people of the other provinces and in the federal parliament, signed the prevailing desire that Maritime grievances should be eliminated as far as possible. Many of these recommendations have been carried out.

How far the changes so brought have inspired the new spirit of progress in the Maritime Provinces it is impossible to say but both statistics and outside observers agree on the notable improvement in general business conditions in that part of Canada. A statement issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics covering conditions as of July 1st last revealed a steady increase in employment, with the prevailing situation the most favorable in the Maritimes for any month in the past nine years. Statistics were tabulated from 558 firms, employing 79,195 workers, as against 75,516 in the preceding month. This increase of nearly 4,000 persons brought employment to a slightly higher level than in any other month of the last nine years, the index standing at 115.2 on July 1, 1928. Construction recorded the greatest improvement, but there were also gains in mining, transportation and trade; on the other hand, manufacturing was slower, chiefly in the iron and steel and food preserving industries.

On his return from a tour of the three eastern provinces a short time ago, Mr. E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, concurred in the reports of better times.

Selection is announced of John W. Dufosse, Editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, to act as a commissioner on the part of the United States on the International Commission under the Treaty for the Advancement of Peace between the United States and Germany. Mr. Dufosse, United States Minister to Canada, has been set up by the United States and Germany to have five members, of which Mr. Dufosse is the first to be named. All disputes between the United States and Germany, after ordinary diplomatic proceedings have failed, are to be referred to the Commission.

Dave Hay has just opened up a new line of sweaters. See them.

He said:

"There is no doubt about the fact that the economic situation in the east is satisfactory, and I am led to the conclusion that the reasonably optimistic outlook for the future which was made everywhere is not only well founded, but is of itself perhaps one of the causes for the notable improvement in conditions which is being experienced."

Here and There

Canadian Pacific steamer Minnedosa recently brought over to Canada two fine stallions belonging to the Prince of Wales, "Alfred" an Arab, and "Cruiser," a Clyde, to be the royal ranch at the River. Alfred is the two horses broke their journey at the Toronto Exhibition, and later were carried across to the Dominion by Canadian Pacific Express. Special accommodation was provided for them on the Minnedosa.

Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery, secretary for the Dominion in the Baldwin administration, fulfilled his wish recently when he climbed Mount Assiniboine, a peak in the Rockies, to accomplish which he had travelled some six thousand miles by Canadian Pacific Express of Australia and lines to Lake Louise from England. He fought his way through blizzards and many other hardships to the top of the peak. He was accompanied by a Swiss guide, Edward Fenz, of Lake Louise.

"Mr. Churchill looked very funny working on one of father's threshing machines," said the Hon. George Rodney, aged ten, who with his younger brother John recently travelled to England to take up schooling. Winston Churchill is a cousin of Lord Rodney who operates a ranch at Fort Saskatchewan, Alberta.

The fourth game refuge had been established in New Brunswick by the provincial government at Beccanville, consisting of 43 square miles located in Carleton and York counties. This makes a total in all of about 640 square miles of territory set aside in the province as game sanctuaries since 1919.

Hon. J. L. Perron, Quebec minister of agriculture, has announced that he is expected in Canada this year, as compared with 3,235,970 in 1928. Compared with the five-year average of 2,985,000 barrels this is an increase of 20%, making it a bumper crop.

A yield of 3,239,995 barrels of apples is expected in Canada this year, as compared with 3,235,970 in 1928. Compared with the five-year average of 2,985,000 barrels this is an increase of 20%, making it a bumper crop.

Homebased entries in the four western provinces continue to run well ahead of last year. For the half year they number 7,129 as compared with 5,145 in the same six months period of 1928. Alberta topped the list with 4,053 filings; Saskatchewan followed with 2,381; British Columbia recorded 211 and Manitoba 325.

Sixty-three wells are being drilled in the Turner Valley. 33 miles south-west of Calgary, 21 are just about to be started and 28 are producing crude naphtha or crude oil—a total of 112 wells. Mr. Winston Churchill, on his recent trip across the Dominion by Canadian Pacific paid a special visit to the Turner Valley accompanied by Mayor Osborne of Calgary.

Had Britain treated Palestine as any other captured Turkish territory, she would, of course, have escaped the threatened war, as well as the abuse which is being unjustly and thanklessly hurled at her from both sides. But Britain would have been untrue to all the ideals which she owes to the Book of books had she failed to seize the opportunity to pave the way for the restoration of Israel, which was for ages held forth with such promise by the Christian as well as Jewish world.

Britain would have been equally untrue to her own pledge to the Arabs had she guaranteed them anything less than she did in the Balfour Declaration. The exact nature of the terms document is too often overlooked.

ATHLETES AND SCOTS AT BANFF

Coinciding with the sports there will be the Highland Gathering and Scottish Musical Festival, August 30-September 2. Lay-out shows the track and two year's festival.

CONFERENCE PROSPECT IS BRIGHT

Right Hon. J. T. Thomas, evidently does not read into Hon. Philip Snowden's famous "no preference" speech the same meaning that has generally been taken by observers in British Dominions. He does not agree that Mr. Snowden's promise to let the taxes on foods of British taxpayers means a halt to effort in the direction of wider reciprocal trade relations between the Motherland and overseas Dominions.

His recent Montreal speech indicated a willingness on the part of the MacDonald government to discuss with Canada plans for furthering of mutual economic interests. He favors a commercial conference.

Inasmuch as both Premier King and Hon. R. B. Bennett have declared themselves and their followers to be in full accord with the idea of increasing and extending avenues of inter-empire trade, this pronouncement from a representative of the British government is both timely and welcome.

What is needed now is action. It is desirable that whatever action is taken upon may be well under way by the time decision with respect to United States tariff revision is reached by Congress. Regardless altogether of what the situation may be in Washington, it will be well for Canada to cultivate to the limit of good business her reciprocal trade relations within the Empire.

In the event of certain United States tariff possibilities, not to do so would be worse than foolish. Pending some action with respect to a commercial conference and final revision of the American tariff, with its possibilities of trade injury to ourselves, it is both interesting and satisfying to note the attitude of Canada's chief Liberal Journal, The Globe of Toronto, which says:

"The Globe persistently has urged that as soon as such an event occurs Canada should divert to Empire markets, at home or abroad, as much as possible of the business now given to the United States, and that this end will be most effectively furthered by:

"1. Lowering the tariff on British goods as far as possible, while compensating the just claims of the Canadian producer; and

"2. Raising the tariff against United States goods as high as possible while considering the interests of the Canadian consumer."

MEADOWBROOK NEWS

Miss Edna Riley is home after working for the past two months at Aspen Beach, and is now visiting her sister, Mrs. Elmer Gillund.

Mr. Joe Walker expects to visit his brother at Buck Lake this week.

He obtained a position on a threshing outfit just out of Lacombe.

We see Ab. Riley has purchased a radio.

HOT ENOUGH

The day is hot, the good old sun is busy baking everyone; men drop and languish in the heat, the pavement's melting in the street; the mercury has climbed so high that the windows break down and cry. My collar is a wilted rag, my clothes are moist and lumpy, and I keep brushing from my map the little rivulets of sap, and breathe a longing, as I burn, that good old winter might return. And now approaches John B. Jay, and well I know just what he'll say; he is all primed, I know, to spring that question old to which men cling when summer heat is at its worst and all the world is parched, athirst. His eyes' slight with eagerness, he hopes to add to my distress with that conundrum which was sprung when Adam and his life were young. But I will head him off, I vow, I won't be persecuted now; and so I cry, in mouthful glee, "Yes, yes, it is hot enough for me!" The light dies out in John B.'s eyes; he's full of sorrow and surprise; he thinks I've pulled a scurvy trick; he looks disgusted, sore and sick. I often wonder why grown men will ask again and yet again that foolish question, gray with age, that stirs us up to doctored rage. Upon a scorching, blazing day, they see us sweat along our way, and every step we take must show that heat is filling us with woe, the premonition, quick and rare, is wisely dropping from our hair, we look as though we needed eaves, and every melting snow globe, and they inquire, the long day through, "Well, is this hot enough for you?"

THE NEW GRAIN COMMISSION

In an official statement to the press, Hon. James Macdonald, Minister of Trade and Commerce, describes the reorganization of the Board of Grain Commissioners as "the first step towards implementing the recommendations of the Committee on Agriculture, following the extensive investigation of last season."

In their choice of the personnel of the new Board, the Dominion Government appear to have acted in perfect good faith, and to have been guided by a desire to secure efficiency and to assure the protection of the rights of the growers of grain as well as the trade.

The chairman, Mr. Ramsay is a man of proved administrative capacity and wide experience who has taken a very prominent part in the building up of the Canadian Wheat Pools, which constitute today (apart from the Dominion Government) the greatest business in Canada. Dr. Macdonald, who is well known in Alberta, adds to his general qualifications as an economist an understanding of marketing problems. He drew up the economic clauses of the report of the Turgeon Commission, which investigated the conduct of the grain trade some years ago and called attention to certain defects in the old form of administration of the Grain Act. Dr. Macdonald also has a sound knowledge of the principles and methods followed by co-operative marketing agencies in Canada. Mr. Hamilton is not so well known in Alberta, but in Saskatchewan he had long administrative experience as Minister of Agriculture, and like Mr. Ramsay he is a practical farmer.

The changes in the Grain Act made last session and the reorganization of the Board of Grain Commissioners follow broadly the recommendations made by Alberta farmers at the Annual Convention of the U.F.A. in January and by the Brown Royal Commission in Saskatchewan. The U.F.A. recommendations were brought forward in Parliament and advocated with great energy and ability by the farmers' representatives. The outcome reveals in a very striking way how far-reaching the results of intelligent organized effort may be. The limits of what the farmers can accomplish when they know clearly what they want and take the proper steps in an organized way to make their desires known, are very wide indeed.

THE SASKATCHEWAN CRISIS

The last chapter of the decline and fall of the Government of Saskatchewan has been written. Liberals throughout Canada will agree that it is a humiliating fate for a great party but one which is thoroughly deserved so long as it was under the leadership of Mr. James G. Gardiner, in whose direction it became discredited, not by its policies but by its tactics and its reputation for control by an unscrupulous "gang". The government's fight to retain its place was carried on far into Thursday night and it was 1 o'clock Friday morning that the death blow was administered and Mr. Gardiner learned at length that there is no such thing as power at any price. The end can hardly be said to have been unexpected since the Government's defeat was actually accomplished at the polls and any other leader would have acknowledged it by resigning. As it is he only added to his own humiliation and the best that can be said for him is that he fought to the last ditch albeit there was more of obstinacy than of heroism in the fight.

Comment on the sitting which led up to the Government's nocturnal defeat would not be complete without a complimentary reference to the conduct of Mr. Speaker Bryson, who, in the chair for the first time and frequently acknowledging his own inexperience, showed the utmost spirit of fair play and, although elected by the Opposition as recently as the previous day, gave the Government the benefit of whatever doubt there was in his mind and every opportunity to save itself if it could.

The Tammany-like rule of the Gardiner Government, then, having been abolished with its own petard, it remains for a new government to demonstrate its moral superiority. At the present moment there is no positive guarantee that it will be any better. There is only the hope. Naturally the question occurs to everyone, "will Mr. Gardiner continue to lead his party in opposition in the next house?" If Saskatchewan Liberals are wise they will see to it that he does not, whatever else may happen. Now that the co-operative opposition of Conservatives, Progressives and Independents is about to become the Government its adherents will remember that they are called there to not by an electorate which respects confidence in their policies but by an electorate which is willing to experiment over the Gardiner regime. For this reason it will become Dr. Anderson and his followers to walk very circumspectly while the Liberals, for their part, will be well advised to commence the immediate reorganization of their party under new leadership, so that it may regain as speedily as possible the public confidence which is its traditional heritage.

THE CHEVROLET

For the first time in the history of the automobile industry, six cylinder cars promise to lead the field in production this year, according to a survey by the Chevrolet Motor Company completed today. Up until this year, four cylinder cars ranked first in annual production volume.

Comparative production figures for the first six months of this year are offered in support of the forecast. During this period there were produced approximately 1,900,000 sixes as compared with approximately 1,200,000 fours, an indication of what the total for the year is apt to be.

How the change comes about is illustrated in the survey. Chevrolet's manufacturing goal for the year is 1,350,000 cars. Chevrolet's change-over from a four to a six means a deduction of this enormous total from the four-cylinder field and adds it to the six cylinder field.

How the automobile picture has changed almost overnight will be noted in an inspection of the 1926 showing. Last year when Chevrolet was producing a four cylinder car, four cylinder manufacturers built approximately 2,000,000 cars, with one large manufacturer of four cylinder cars on limited production due to need of change, while six cylinder manufacturers were making 1,617,000 cars. As it now stands the year 1926 should show 3,000,000 six cylinder units as compared to only 3,200,000 four cylinder units.

Consequently this significant development, which will make the current year an epochal one in the annals of the automobile business, comes about chiefly as a result of the entrance of Chevrolet into the six cylinder field. In lay circles, this event is seen as a tribute to the automobile industry and the newest step which this gigantic business has taken in the direction of constantly offering its patrons more automobile per dollar.

Great volume production, coupled with expert direction in the engineering, manufacturing and selling branches of the business are given as reasons that are making it possible for the automobile industry to lead all others in giving the public the utmost for its money.

STANDARD LAWS URGED

An attempt to change the method of making judicial appointments and make them non-political, a uniform company law, and standard liquor and traffic acts for the provinces, were the main legal changes suggested to the members of the Canadian Bar Association today in the presidential address of Hon. Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., of Toronto, Ontario. Nesbitt, K.C., of Toronto, Ontario, was unable to be present and his address was read by his son, Rankine Nesbitt, Toronto.

The president expressed his conviction that judges in both high and county courts were overstaffed and that the profession should exert influence to see that fewer appointments were made and that the appointments were taken out of the sphere of politics by having the governing legal body in the province nominate certain of the profession from which the minister of justice would make his choice.

In view of the rapidly increasing tourist trade, uniformity of liquor and traffic acts was desirable in the speaker's opinion. "To the American tourist," said Mr. Nesbitt, "Canada is one distinct country and not so many provinces, and he is often disconcerted travelling between the provinces. The traffic acts need only cover major problems such as speed limits and leave the local ones, such as licensing to the provinces."
